NFO Head Hails Ford For 'Repudiation' Of CED Plan

By GLEN KREUSCHER

Farm Editor

Oren Lee Staley, president of the National Farmers Organization (NFO) congratulated Ford Motor Co. officials on what he considered was a repudiation by the company of the Committee for Economic Development (CED) agriculture plan in reply to NFO farmer visits to Ford dealers and distributors throughout the Midwest the past week.

The Ford Motor Company in reply to the National Farmers Organization said in a release that the Committee for Economic Development report "An Adaptive Program for Agriculture" does not reflect the views and policy of the company.

"Ford Motor Company had no participation in either the substance or the findings of the report and the company has taken no position in support of the report," said the Ford Motor Co. release.

Dispelled

Any relationship between Theodore O. Yntema, a Ford Motor Co. vice president, and company support for his leadership as chairman of the CED Research and Policy Committee was dispelled by the Ford Motor Co. explanation. "He participates in the CED only as a private citizen and not as a representative of Ford Motor Co."

Ford Motor Co. and Sears, Roebuck and Co. have been prime targets for criticism by the NFO because company officials of the two organizations served as chairman and vice chairman of the CED Research and Policy Committee.

tee who initiated the controversial plan for agriculture, Staley said.

The NFO had raised objection to any link that might exist or be implied that CED committee members who suggested solving farm problems by lowering farm prices and moving two million farmers from the land had the support of large corporations on which they also served as officials.

Requested

The NFO in visits to Ford dealers and distributors and in a letter to Henry Ford II, had requested a statement on Ford's position in support or denial of the CED agricultural plan in reply to NFO farmer visits to Ford dealers and distributors throughout the Midwest the past week.

Orville Lenz of Elmwood, state president and national director of NFO, said Monday, "Ford's denial of CED support demonstrates that agriculture still packs a wallop in business circles if farmers organize their economic strength."

He asked Nebraska business to figure for themselves what an extra billion dollars yearly income created through agriculture would mean to state economy. "This is what Nebraska is missing by selling agricultural products below their true value," Lenz said.

Staley noted that the Ford release was made the day previous to a nationwide membership meeting of NFO members to be held in Des Moines, Ia.

NFO officials have described the farmer meeting as the "largest group of farmers to ever assemble in a one-day meeting."

Cuts Wind

"With Mr. Yntema divisor of any support by the Ford Motor Co. publicly for CED's agriculture plan it takes a lot of wind out of the sails for any widespread support of what an individual without apparent relationship to agriculture thinks is good for the farmer," said Staley.

The Ford Motor Co. repudiation of the CED report demonstrates farmers ability to make their opinion felt, Staley said.

MARINER 2 BLASTS OFF TOWARD VENUS

Cape Canaveral, Fla. (UPI) — An interplanetary U.S. space ship named Mariner 2 was launched successfully from a space platform circling the earth Monday and ground-based scientists hoped to guide it on a 109-day journey to the vicinity of the planet Venus.

America's most powerful working space booster, a 10-story tall Atlas-Agena B, vaulted away from its search-light-illuminated pad into the early morning sky above Cape Canaveral at 12:53 a.m. CST with the intricate spacecraft tucked in its nose.

Several minutes later the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced that the Agenda B second stage had settled into an orbit 115 miles above the earth. Some 40 minutes after launching the announcement came that the rocket had fired successfully and kicked Mariner 2 free in space.

Officials said that all early phases of the flight appeared to be normal. However, they said it would be several hours after launching before tracking stations in South Africa and Australia would be able to determine if Mariner 2 was on the proper Venus trajectory.

Even if it achieves the proper course, the gold and silver plated spacecraft faces a formidable task before it reaches Venus. Several complex maneuvers must be accomplished by instruments inside the craft and at command stations on the ground.

Whether radio equipment and hundreds of complex electronic devices in the payload would function during the entire 180-million mile trip was question mark.

The London Observer quoted British Labor Party Chairman Richard Crossman as saying that East German officials "made it plain" to him during just-completed Berlin visit that they planned to turn West Berlin into "an island surrounded by a full-fledged national frontier."

Western Allies Told To Deal With Appointee

Berlin (UPI) — The communists told Western allies Sunday they would have to deal in the future with the newly appointed East German commandant in any "complaints" about this walled city.

The official East German communist newspaper Neues Deutschland issued the warning in the face of U.S. State Department rejection of the idea of any dealings with the new commandant, Maj. Gen. Helmut Poppe.

The communist newspaper said Poppe, appointed Thursday to replace the previous Russian commandant of Berlin, now is the man for the West to deal with in Berlin. It said with an apparent attempt at sarcasm that the United States, Britain and France have the right to present to Poppe their "complaints and wishes."

Status Invalid

The East German communists also said the city's 4-power status was invalid and the Western occupation illegal.

But they made no move to curtail Western rights and the border was quiet. Some observers, however, felt it

RESERVE PLAN RAPPED

Pentagon Told To Scrap Idea

. . . DEFENSE SECRETARY WARNED

Washington (UPI) — Congressional investigators told the Pentagon Sunday to scrap most of its Reserve plan and come up with something better to cure failures exposed by the Berlin crisis limited callup.

They reminded Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara also that the wide powers given him by Congress can be taken away unless deeds replace the lip-service-pledging cooperation that has been given in copious quantities."

In an unanimous finding, a House Armed Services Subcommittee criticized both past and planned handling of Reserves — claiming it was likely to depress morale and let the program "rock and stumble along" without significantly increasing military readiness.

Coupled Criticism

The report issued by Chairman S. Edward Hebert, D-La., after prolonged hearings, coupled criticism of Pentagon inflexibility with committee recommendations for positive Defense Department action not later than next Feb. 1.

Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., veteran chairman of the parent committee, endorsed the report together with its conclusion that "Neither the constitution nor our creator has endowed these experts in the Pentagon with the cloak of infallibility."

The report said the Army "demonstrated inability" to select the best prepared men and units for the small-scale mobilization.

It deplored attempts by the Army and the Defense Department to "justify these confusions" with the testified admission that they "have not prepared contingency plans which contemplated a partial mobilization."

Packs Wallop

The committee encouraged the Army to eliminate obsolete and unnecessary Reserve units, but only on the understanding that they would be replaced with outfits trained and equipped to meet modern requirements.

As to several hundred "so-called surplus units" the Army wants to scrap, the report said they should be retained and given new missions or kept intact to beef up the regular forces in a future mobilization.

Opposed Abolition

The committee specifically opposed abolition of 8 Reserve and Guard divisions as envisioned in the Pentagon reorganization scheme.

The report specifically called on the Defense Department to submit before Feb. 1 draft legislation to permit longer training for 6-months servicemen and to tighten the draft liability for short-term trainees who fail to keep up skills of 6-month trainees.

Army laxity went so far, the committee held, that one Reserve Maintenance Company got away with listing and paying two men clerk typists as helicopter mechanics.

The Air National Guard was praised for "outstanding accomplishment" in deploying units overseas.

But the committee found "most reprehensible" the Air Force action in recalling a few individual Reservists assigned to organized units, contrary to law.

Navy Commanded

The Navy Reserve was commended for making a smaller though significant contribution to the crisis build-up. The Navy Department, however, was chided for accepting the "increased inflexibility" of outside controls over its Reserve programs.

FAIR SKIES, WARM AGAIN ON MONDAY

BY BETTY PERSON

Star Staff Writer

Fair skies are forecast for most of Nebraska Monday, with some chance of widely scattered thunderstorms in the west-central, central and northeast portions by evening.

Temperatures will climb into the 90s over the state, reaching about 95 in the Lincoln area during the day Monday.

The Weather

LINCOLN: Fair Monday, partly cloudy by night. Warmer. Chance of isolated thunderstorms by night. Highs 90 to 95.

EAST AND CENTRAL NEBRASKA: Fair to partly cloudy Monday, with widely scattered thunderstorms likely west-central late afternoon and over central and northeast by night. Highs in the 90s.

The 13th and J Sky Park manor project has been picked since Tuesday by the union ironworkers in a continuation of troubles running back to August 1961 between Local 21 and Lincoln contractors.

The contractors sent two wires to the union's business agent in Omaha Saturday, stating that a temporary stoppage of operations and layoff of employees was effective at 5 p.m. Saturday unless the picketing stops.

Lincoln construction firms indicated that their action was directed toward protecting the principle of collective bargaining. They have charged the union's picketing and refusal to negotiate as "unlawful."

Following a special meeting of the contractors Sunday afternoon one of the association members confirmed that no reply to the wire had been received and that the shutdown was still in effect.

Named as defendants were secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, attorney general, governor and Lancaster County election commissioner.

The plaintiffs, charging "undeniable, willful discrimination" against the state's urban citizens, asked the court to require the 1963 Legislature to reapportion itself on a strict population basis, and that the proposed constitutional amendment making area a

Exiles Would Still Be Firing In Cuba

. . . IF AMMUNITION HAD LASTED

Miami, Fla. (UPI) — Jose Basulto, the man behind the gun in an exile shelling of Havana, says his group would "still be there shooting at Castro if we had enough stuff."

"We didn't start back until we had used up all the ammunition," Basulto said in an interview Sunday. While he fired the 20 millimeter gun, "the rest of our crew shot rifles and pistols and anything else we had on board. We would have thrown rocks at them if we had any."

Basulto, a young, slender Cuban, said the raid went smoothly until the two boats got close enough for the raiders to see the lights of Cuba.

"Helluva Cannon" "That was a helluva cannon. It was German and we bought it for $300. They let me shoot it."

Tank Leaked "Target of the raid, Basulto said, was the Rosita de Hornedo Hotel "where Castro began to leak and gas ran all over the deck. We didn't know what to do. The gas was right under the cannon, and I was going to shoot it. We were afraid the shots might spark and cause an explosion."

"But there was Cuba — and we were too deep in the thing to back out. The captain did something to fix the leak and we went on."

Basulto said it took about 5 hours to make the trip. The boats were a converted PT boat and a 34-footer that had the cannon mounted on the back.

"When the word came, I opened up on the hotel dining room where Castro was supposed to be holding the meeting with the Russians. We could only hope he was there too."

"I must have shot about 26 times. It was really something. I could see the shells break into the hotel windows and then all the lights went out."

Basulto said shots were returned but went wide of the mark.

After expending their ammunition, Basulto said, the raiders nearly were caught when two Castro patrol boats closed in a few miles from shore.

Sped Through "We were faster, so we opened it up full throttle and tried to get between them. They closed in, but we sped through, with the PT boat behind us."

"Another patrol boat came up and started chasing. Thank God for our fast boat. If they had gotten to us, we had nothing to defend ourselves with."

On the rest of the trip, Basulto said, "We made a few jokes and ate some sandwiches. We didn't eat before because they told us it was bad to get hit by a bullet on a full stomach."

None Hurt As Bus, Train Hit In Schuyler

Schuyler (UPI) — Eight persons escaped injury Sunday night when a Capital Stage Lines of Lincoln bus was in collision with a Union Pacific railroad freight train at a crossing in Schuyler.

Witnesses said the bus went on the tracks after an eastbound train crossed and struck the rear of the diesel unit and then was bumped by each of 75 freight cars.

Delmar R. Scarborough, 24, of Lincoln, the bus driver, said he had 7 passengers on the bus.

Mrs. Margaret Dillman of Newman Grove, a passenger, said it was remarkable that the bus driver escaped injury.

"I hope people will realize that the driver wasn't negligent," she said, adding: "we couldn't see the other train."

Good Farmer Knows Seeds And Weeds

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

You can't be a very good farmer unless you can identify your weeds and seeds, says Steve Paschold, 14, of Firth, who in his first year of 4-H club work won the trophy for crop judging at the Lancaster County fair. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Paschold.

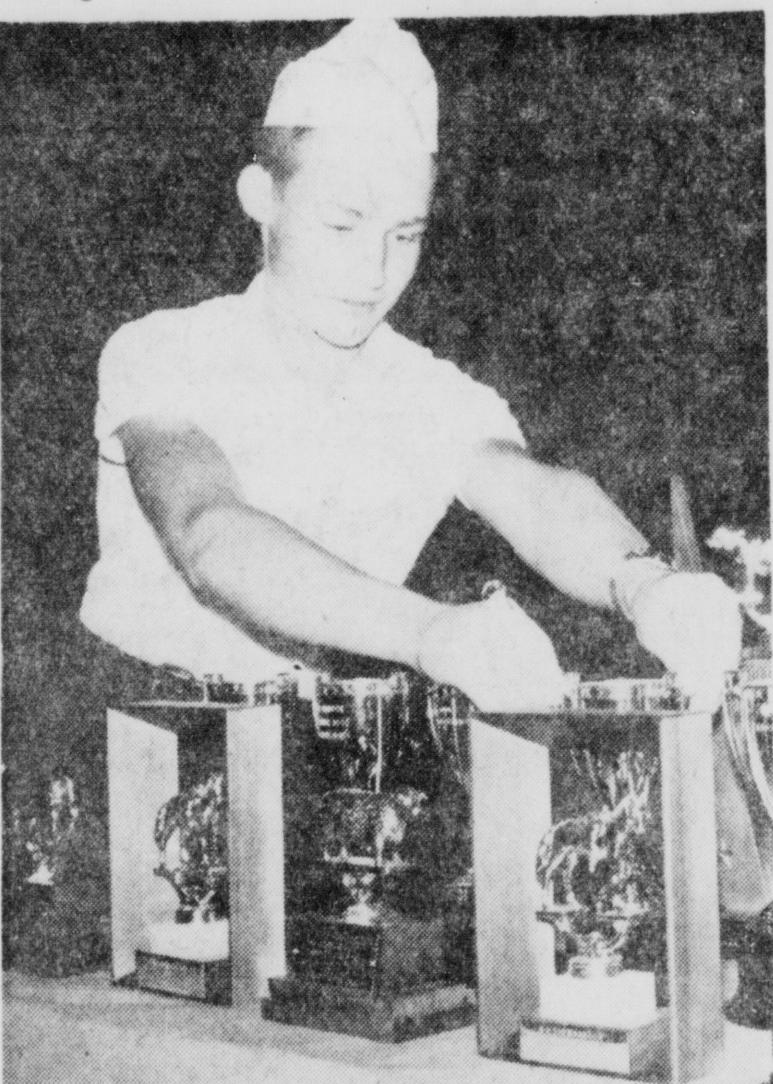

You don't stop just because you won a trophy at the county fair, you keep right on working and studying so you can match wits with other county winners when the state fair competition arrives next week, Steve says.

Steve says that he has always been interested in weeds and their control. His goal is to be a Lutheran minister but he believes good knowledge of agriculture can be valuable to his future.

While there are many valuable things to learn in 4-H projects, Steve says the added benefits of fellowship with other boys and girls in the county helps build lasting friendships.

County Agent Emery Nelson, who has coached a succession of state and nation winning 4-H teams, says, "If you are looking for."

'ONE FOR ME' . . . Work pays off for Steve Paschold at the Lancaster County fair.

Program Destroys Barriers

A new trainee program that brings German grain buyers to the Great Plains area for study is breaking down the communications barrier between U.S. wheat growers and the West Germans, a U.S. wheat leader told Nebraska wheat commission officials this week.

Charles Potucek, administrative assistant on the staff of Great Plains Wheat, Inc., of Garden City, Kansas, was in Lincoln regarding a German trainee who is here as a part of the exchange program. The trainee, Heino Riechers, of Hamburg, Germany, is currently studying grain marketing methods at Equity Union Grain Co. here.

Potucek said Riechers is one of 5 West German youths now in the Great Plains studying our grain marketing system. They are here on 6-month study tours. All work for grain brokers in West Germany and are buyers of import wheat.

"By acquainting these men with the production and marketing methods used in the Great Plains wheat industry, we put them in a position to know better how to buy our wheat and what to look for in order to fill their import needs," Potucek said. "These men will return to West Germany as good ambassadors for Great Plains wheat, thus providing our wheat growers with a vital link between West German importers and the American growers and exporters."

Potucek said the 5 German youths are studying in Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Popular Mechanical Myths

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Looking around for a second car? Have your eye on one that belongs to a spinster in the block who has never driven it outside the city or beyond the speed limits? Yes sir, it sounds real good but it isn't. All of us have heard the used car salesman who gives a big pitch on the blind person who owned the car for years just as a show piece or the school teacher who never drove except to and from work and lived three miles from her job.

Most of us don't believe these stories, at least more than once, but all of us would like too. We rough, that had age in terms of years to cut its price but age in terms of mileage to make it a real bargain. Luckily, most of us won't run across any such "bargains." Our luck is explained in "Petroleum Today," a publication of the American Petroleum Institute. Mainly, the Institute is interested in people understanding such things as the depletion allowance, the risks of the petroleum business, the importance of research and the many other aspects of the oil industry.

But it accomplishes its objective in a pleasant way by not pounding one on the head. It very nicely works its message into various and sundry articles that have enough merit to stand on their own feet and hold your attention. One such article deals with the false notions people have about automobiles.

"The idea is that a car that's had a lifetime of short, slow trips is a good buy," the articles says, "but don't you believe it. The fact is that it's probably a terrible buy . . . The trouble with a short-distance driving is that the engine doesn't work up to proper operating temperatures."

"When an engine is running cold, the choke stays in operation, feeding a rich, liquid, gasoline-laden mixture to the cylinders. Unburned gasoline washes oil off the cylinder walls, increasing wear on them; it gets into the crankcase and thins the oil. A rich mixture burns incompletely, especially in a cold engine, which means it's producing soot and other undersirables. Combustion forms steam that turns to water in a cold engine; and this water pollutes the oil, helps make sludge and corrosive acids. All in all, a poor show. Other things being equal, a used car dealer would be making a more persuasive pitch if he said: 'This load belonged to a traveling salesman in the Panhandle. He used to belt it along at 70 miles an hour.'

Where Economy Stands

No one individual can provide us with an economic gospel but the words of some people are certainly to be highly respected. Such a person is Per Jacobsson, managing director of the International Monetary Fund. An economist of international renown, Mr. Jacobsson, in an interview published in the Christian Science Monitor, views the U.S. economy as healthy and rewarding.

The most significant thing he sees is an end to inflation and the effect this has had. People have begun to have to make adjustments in their economic thinking and behavior, he is quoted by the Monitor, and management is watching costs. He reports the dollar gaining strength overseas and American exports holding up well, with the balance-of-payments picture beginning to shift in our favor.

He views the current administration deficit of $4 billion to $5 billion as a "help in spreading purchasing power." He considers our 7.5 per cent increase in gross national product over last year as most satisfactory. Our position in Europe is improving, he shows, as a result of continued rising costs abroad in the face of our newfound stability.

"The more the international bankers look at this administration," he said, "the more they realize that some of their fears have been exaggerated, that there is a great deal of stability in Washington. In European capitals the moderate deficit of this government would be accepted as a normal thing."

Those who like can disagree with everything Mr. Jacobsson says but the record supports him and his credentials are quite impressive. We will never stop wanting to improve our economy but it is encouraging to see this analysis by an impartial and qualified judge of the matter.

The hacks who try to find a political issue in the state of our economy may face a lot of hard digging.

Oversold Ourselves

Drug consumers may regret the failure of Sen. Kefauver's efforts to lower drug prices, but they will still appreciate the protective measures involved in the Senate's action in behalf of tighter federal control over marketing of newly discovered medicines. Obviously, the Senate was less interested in prices than in public safety.

Primarily it gave the Food and Drug Administration expanded discretion in ordering drugs off the market on evidence of dangerous side effects. And it entered a speculative field when it allowed the administration to determine the effectiveness of a new drug. Heretofore safety was the prime consideration.

There is a great deal of latitude in the term "effectiveness." It will take unusual wisdom and judgment to render decisions fairly in specific cases. If the House accepts this provision as the Senate did then the east by a six mile tunnel where a series of electric generating plants located one below the other will extract 123,900 kilowatts of new power before the water flows out on the plains to irrigate 180,000 acres.

This will be a magnificent engineering feat and one cannot go along with the critics who label it political. A fear of economic advantage runs through the criticism.

It is true that the water will multiply the productivity of 180,000 eastern Colorado acres presently too arid to be a competitive factor. But since when has productive efficiency become a wrong? It is not wrong in the case of industry. A great factor in the strength of the country lies in a desire to improve. And as yet when has improvement hurt the economy?

It is true that the irrigation of the upper and central Platte Valley has shifted the Nebraska agricultural emphasis to that region and to some extent has complicated the problem of older areas where once top production figures cannot compete with the new ones. But those areas are now also improving by diversification and the state is experiencing a stronger and more abundant economy.

It would be better for the critics to cease bucking progress and to transfer that energy into developing the equivalent in their areas.

"Give an Irishman lager for a month, and he's a dead man. An Irishman is lined with copper, and the beer corrodes it. But whiskey polishes the copper and is the saving of him."

—Mark Twain

On a gray, rainy road in Connacht, between two fences, the rented Wolsey quit for the fourth time and I got out to push again.

The generator was shot. The windshield wipers were electric—just enough to run down the battery.

A farmer came out from behind the white, thatched cottage and shovelled the car until it burst into life again.

He stood behind me waving good-by in the rain in the barren, heather hills where Cromwell banished the Irish from the fertile east—"to hell or to Connacht."

I was shivering fit to die when I got to my room at the Great Southern in Galway. A taste of the thermometer gave me a reading of 104.

"And may you die in Ireland," says the Irish toast. It seemed like an even money proposition. Maybe better.

"What you need," said Mr. Brian Collins, "is a drop of poteen in a glass of hot milk." (Protein is illegal moonshine, brewed of potatoes and grain.)

"But," said Mr. Collins sadly, "the only way to get it is to join the Garda. Then that seizes it gets the good stuff."

(Most Irishmen are convinced that the seized poteen is drunk by the police.)

In the absence of the potent poteen, he gave me a small bottle of Power's Three Swallows.

"Only last Tuesday I was near death when I took it myself. And by 10 o'clock that night, wasn't I down at Ryans' playing cards!"

The resurgence of Irish whiskey throughout the world has been a sight to behold.

Ten years ago it was a rarity outside Ireland. It spread on the creamy wings of Irish coffee—that delicate brew invented by Joe Sheridan at Shannon Airport.

It was developed by San Francisco's waterfront Buena Vista Cafe (which now sells 12,000 cases of it a year!) It is sold in Maxim's in Hong Kong. It is a major drink in Helsinki and it is advertised in Mexico City.

The straight whiskey has more malt flavor than Scotch. No pea-smoke flavor, for the sprouted barley is dried over coke fires.

Drinking the straight stuff is described here as "having a ball of malt."

An Irish over ice is about as "in" as you can get in the States—thanks to the class-conscious New Yorker advertising of Weiner and Gossage, the firehouse firm of San Francisco's Pacific street.

"Usquebaugh—the water of life—was invented by the Irish," said Brian. "It's been the saving of many at death's door but for the intervention of a mellow dram at the right minute. (Not that I've anything against poteen if it wasn't that Garda got it all.)

"Take this with hot milk," said Brian. "The results will surprise you."

I did and it did. It nearly knocked my head off.

Study Shows Impact Of Eichmann Trial In U. S.

New York (UPI) — The American Jewish Committee Sunday released a study of the impact the Eichmann trial in Israel had upon the United States.

The study is contained in an 88-page booklet entitled "The Eichmann Case in the American Press."

It is drawn from a survey of editorial comment in some 2,000 newspapers over a two-year period, from the time Eichmann was captured, through his trial and subsequent execution.

Unanimous Press

"It has shown that the press of this country almost unanimously saw the trial as a warning against all forms of prejudice and the continuing threat of totalitarianism to democracy," the committee said.

Only a minority touched on the underlying causes of Nazism and the world's failure

CARMICHAEL

It said the Nazi system was generally regarded as the real defendant in the majority of the press, and the proceedings themselves dispelled most of the early suspicions that the main objective was revenge.

"As the trial progressed, the question of universal Christian responsibility to combat bigotry came to the fore," the report said. "There was much self-examination, profound declarations of conscience, confessions of former indifference and reminders of the link between political discrimination and the bigotry which can lead to mass murder."

Combat Prejudice

Readers were called upon to combat racial and religious prejudice in any form, to stand up for rights of others and to insure that "it shall not happen again."

However, the report said, few publications cited the long tradition of anti-Semitism in European culture. Anti-Semitism was frequently treated as almost an original conception of Nazi propagandists who played on the pagan element in society."

Alert Attitude Goal Of LAFB Library

By SUSAN STANLEY
Star Staff Writer

An airman wanting to learn French, a child looking for a picture of a gila monster, a bride looking for the latest best-seller—all 3 find solutions in the Lincoln Air Force Base library.

Over 13 thousand books are housed in a number of collections in the library, which is devoted to maintaining an "alert and thinking attitude" on the part of over 10,000 patrons.

The adult collection of fiction and non-fiction books places special emphasis on technical and scientific material.

A large young people's alcove for homework and recreational reading has recently been added.

The juvenile collection includes a large variety of books both for the small child to read and to have read to him.

A special Strategic Air Command grant has allowed the library to increase its juvenile and young people's collection to almost triple the original size.

Several sources provide the books found in the library.

The profit of the Base Exchange and other money-making projects is utilized, and the Department of the Air Force sends a monthly kit of 50 current titles which are sent to bases throughout the world. A rental service allows the library to rent books when the demand for them is heavy, returning them when this demand has decreased.

But in addition to the functions which the library has in common with civilian libraries, special base needs are also served.

Other sections of the Base use the means of ordering scientific and technical books needed in their fields.

An interesting and varied summer program is offered for the enjoyment of the children of base personnel.

The Dinosaur Reading Club, with 100 members, aids in keeping the cobwebs out of the brains of vacationing school-children, and a series of filmed stories is also offered.

After a tour of duty in another country, the library is often one of the first stops made by an airman. In a new collection of over 200 albums are many language learning records.

Feature plans for the library include:

- for children, a weekly story hour, with guest story tellers

- a series of travel films

- a regular monthly music program featuring classical and light classical records

BEVY OF BRIDES

MRS. JOHN W. MCKEE, JR.

The marriage of Miss Kathryn Dee Calder, daughter of Mrs. Arnold Calder, and the late Mr. Calder, to John W. McKee Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. McKee of Clay Center, Kan., was solemnized Saturday morning, Aug. 25, at St. Matthew's Church, Episcopal. Bouquets of white gladioli appointed the altar for the 10 o'clock service, which was read by the Rev. James Stilwell, and Mrs. Lloyd True, organist, played the wedding music.

Pink silk shantung was chosen for the full-skirted frocks of the attendants who were Mrs. Ronald Souliere, as the matron of honor; the bridesmaid, Miss Kathryn McKee, and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Mary McKee, of Clay Center, both sisters of the bridegroom. Their costumes were completed by head bows of pink shantung, and they carried nosegays of white daisies.

James Riordan of Beloit, Kan., served as best man, and seating the guests were Douglas McKee of Clay Center, brother of the bridegroom, and Robert Blaylock, Smith Center, Kan.

White silk and Chantilly lace were selected by the bride for her wedding gown. The sculptured, strapless bodice of silk was covered by an overblouse of lace, designed with long sleeves and a high, jewel throatline, and the slim lines of the silk skirt were emphasized by slight fullness at either side of the narrow waist. A circlet of the silk trimmed with a tailored bow held her illusion veil, and she carried a rounded bouquet of white daisies.

Following a wedding trip to Indian Hills, Colo., the couple will reside in Man-

SUNDAY CEREMONIES

For the wedding of Miss Carolyn Sherwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sherwood, and Richard Hammond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Hammond of Aztec, N.M., which was solemnized Sunday afternoon, Aug. 26, lighted candles and pedestal bouquets of white summer blossoms decorated the chapel of Rees Hall at Union College. Elder Sidney Allen read the lines of the service, and Mrs. Ruth Thompson, organist, played the wedding music. The vocal soloists were Miss Mary Lou Ham of Riverside, Calif., and Jerry Patton.

Frocked in sea-green silk organza over taffeta in the daytime mode and carrying bouquets of gold Fuji chrysanthemums were Miss Donna June Sherwood, who was her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Runnels of Minneapolis, and Mary Lou Ham of Riverside, Calif.

John Hammond of Denver served his brother as best man, and seating the guests were Roger Tomlinson, Archie March and Erling Schroeder.

The bride's gown of white nylon organza over taffeta was trimmed with appliqued medallions of imported lace. Lace edged the fitted, bracelet sleeves and squared neckline of the elongated bodice, beneath which the skirt flared widely, brushing the floor at the back. Her illusion veil was held by a crown of pearls and iridescent sequins, and she carried a crescent of white Fuji chrysanthemums.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond will live in Ellendale, N.D., where the bridegroom will serve a ministerial internship at the Seventh-Day Adventist Church. A graduate of Union College, he received a degree in ministry at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich., this summer. A former student at Union College, Mrs. Hammond is a graduate of Andrews University with a degree in dietetics.

Why Grow Old?

Exercise Can Be Big Help

Josephine Lowman

Mild exercise continued through a woman's natural cycles may keep her feeling better.

We take for granted so many things which happen to us, and often are very poorly informed concerning them. For instance, I am thinking of the menstrual period which arrives as surely, and almost as regularly, as the moon does each month. How much do you really know about this? How many facts and fallacies do you believe? Let me bring you a few facts today.

In the first place, the monthly period is nature's preparation for conception or pregnancy. Ovulation occurs in the ovaries. Unless a fertilized egg attaches itself to the lining of the uterus, menstruation occurs.

The menstrual period is a perfectly natural cycle. Most women make little change in their daily activities during these times. They may tire a little easily and may not be quite so emotionally stable at the beginning of, or before, each period.

Mild exercise is all right during the monthly periods. Do not overdo it. As a matter of fact it has been found that those who are active are less likely to have cramps. If a woman experiences cramps month after month, she should see her doctor for help.

There is no reason why a woman should not take showers and baths during this time, although chilling should be avoided.

The average duration of the menstrual period is from three to five days. Anywhere between two and seven days is considered normal.

You should see your doctor if you skip one or more periods, have an excessive flow, persistent cramps, if your period lasts longer than seven days, or if you have any irregularities between periods.

The average menstrual cycle is 28 days. However, women vary greatly with a range of from 21 to 35 days, and sometimes longer.

A severe illness (and sometimes even a mild one), a shock or a great and sudden change in elevation or climate, may delay the arrival of a period.

You have problem hips? To reduce and firm the hips, the old bicycle ride is one of the best exercises. Lie on your back, throw your legs upward as though you were going to turn a backward somersault. Catch your hips and support them with your hands, elbows resting on the floor, legs pointing toward ceiling.

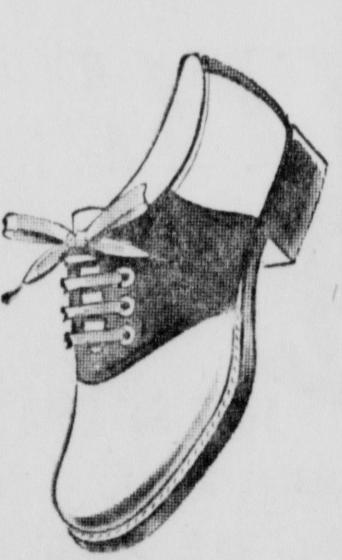

Work your legs as if riding a bicycle. It is more important to make a complete circle with each foot than it is to do this exercise very rapidly but "pedal" as fast as you can without slighting the circle.

If you would like to have my leaflet, "The Menstrual Period," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 31 to Josephine Lowman, The Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Neb.

Next to the municipal softball fields is a small playground for the small, under-7-year-old children of the softball players.

It was built with money left by the former Industrial Softball League to the City Recreation Department to be used for the benefit of the softball teams.

This spring the lot was opened and now contains about $4,000 worth of equipment with a few pieces still to come.

TV. Too

There is a rocket, a TV house (primarily for the mothers while the kiddies play), a merry-go-round, climbing things, tot swings, a circular track with tunnel to ride trikes and little cars on, sandboxes, and a slide.

A feature of this playground is the safety with which the children can play.

TELEGRAPHERS PLAN STRIKE FOR THURSDAY

Chicago (UPI) — A strike was called Sunday by the AFL-CIO Order of Railroad Telegraphters against the Chicago & North Western Railway for 6 a.m. (CST) Thursday.

George E. Leighty, union president, said the strike will affect 1,000 members of his union and a total of 16,500 C. & N.W. employees.

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg announced in Washington Friday that the no-strike pledge of the telegraphers would be canceled effective at 5 p.m. (CST) Wednesday. Goldberg said he had taken the action because there had been no progress in 3 weeks of negotiations.

The no-strike commitment made by the union Aug. 1 at the request of President Kennedy was to expire in mid-September.

The union is demanding a guaranteed job freeze for about 1,000 members employed by the railroad.

The amendment, if passed, would make industry secondary to agriculture in Nebraska, Syas said. The state "can't attract new business that way," he added.

The Omaha lawmaker also warned that, with a decreasing rural population, new industry is necessary to provide employment for young Nebraskans who otherwise leave the state.

Schools Open As Summer Closes

As the days of summer come to an end, so do the days of summer vacation. Before the autumnal equinox rolls around on Sept. 23, all of Lincoln's public and parochial schools, colleges and universities will be in full operation.

The rural schools are the first to start, some beginning already on Aug. 26, but most will wait until the 3rd or 4th of September to begin classes.

The parochial schools follow next. The Roman Catholic schools, Cathedral, Sacred Heart, St. Teresa's, Holy Family, St. Mary's, St. Johns, Blessed Sacrament, and Pius X, will begin classes on Sept. 4 with an estimated enrollment of 3400 students.

Diocesan Superintendent James Dawson noted that this is an increase from the 3305 enrolled last year, even though two elementary schools, Cathedral and Sacred Heart, won't have kindergarten classes this year.

The kindergartners will remain at St. Teresa's and Holy Family.

The 3 Lutheran Schools, Trinity, Calvary and the new junior high at 1100 No. 56th, expect an enrollment of about 385, 85 higher than last year, during the first week of classes beginning Sept. 7, said principal Arthur Krause.

The Helen Hyatt Elementary School and the College

View Academy, Seventh Day Adventist grade and high schools, plan to open on Sept. 6th and 4th respectively to above 27,500, will then begin classes on Sept. 10.

All of Lincoln's public grade, junior high, and senior high schools, which expect a total enrollment by the end of the first week of above 27,500, will then begin classes on Sept. 10.

The public schools have traditionally waited until after the State Fair to begin classes, said Steven Walker, City Superintendent of Schools.

Lincoln's college and university classes do not begin until mid September, but registration and pre-registration activities begin much sooner for many of the students.

Nebraska Wesleyan is the first to start, with classes beginning on the 12th, and Union College follows on the 13th.

The University of Nebraska and Cotter College then complete the list when their classes begin on the 17th of September.

6 Children Die In California Fire

Clovis, Calif. (UPI) — The 6 children of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Funk were killed early Sunday when a fire swept through their new home.

Heavy smoke prevented the rescue of the children, but the parents managed to escape by jumping through a window.

Vice President Gets Rousing Welcome On Visit To Turkey

Ankara, Turkey (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon Johnson, given a rousing welcome as he rode in a 1934 model convertible, Sunday asked police to relax their restrictions so he could talk Texas-style to some of the thousands who lined the streets.

Johnson's motorcade, which was halted for awhile when the car carrying his wife broke down, was slowed time after time as the crowd pushed forward to see him. Johnson halted the car frequently on the 23-mile ride to shout greetings to the throngs.

The vice president, accompanied on his good-will tour by his wife, Lady Bird, and 18-year-old daughter, Linda, had experienced a similar triumph in Iran, where they were mobbed by wild but friendly crowds in Teheran's bustling bazaar.

Pledges Fulfillment

The Johnsons stood in an open 1934 convertible that crept slowly into downtown Ankara from the airport where he pledged that the United States will fulfill its military commitments to Turkey.

The vice president brought his broad smile and ready Texas handshake for the Turks who are solidly pro-Western but badly in need of funds and who want American reassurance.

Hundreds of thousands of cheering Turks swarmed around Johnson's vehicle and many trotted behind it as the caravan wound its way slowly to the hotel where the Johnson party was staying for the two-day visit in Ankara.

The 23-mile route from the airport took 3 and one-half hours, getting off to a slow start when Johnson made repeated cross roads stops in the farming areas en route to shake hands with clusters of peasants while each village's band — a drummer and horn blower — provided eerie musical accompaniment.

At the outskirts of Ankara, the vice president was met by his first huge crowd and from there for several miles through the city there were outpourings of huge masses of people, sometimes blocking the wide Ataturk boulevard for several blocks ahead.

At many points in the heart of the city and en route, Johnson halted the procession and through an interpreter shouted words of American-Turkish friendship and repeated the gist of his airport arrival speech. Basically, this was a promise to help Turkey maintain its independence, integrity and freedom.

"We would consider that an attack on Turkey would be an attack upon the United States," Johnson said.

Premier At Side

In the open limousine beside him was Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu, who was quoted by Johnson as saying Sunday's crowd was the biggest he had ever seen.

Leaving the Balain Hotel after escorting the vice president and his family there at the end of their initial tour, Inonu told U.S. Ambassador Raymond Hare the Johnsons "were tired but they made Ankara very happy."

"It was a great day for me and for Ankara," the prime minister said.

Callan Calls For Yntema To Come And Debate Plan

Democratic Congressional candidate Clair A. Callan Saturday sent a letter to Theodore O. Yntema, chairman of the Committee for Economic Development, challenging him to come to Nebraska for a series of debates or discussions.

The CED's proposed "Adaptive Program for Agriculture," said Callas, has resulted in widespread comment and demonstrations which were "not unlikely" envisioned by members of the committee.

The proposed program, said Callan, is unrealistic, does not consider human factors, would be very expensive, and would not attain their intended goals, except to disrupt the entire Mid-western economy.

For these reasons, Callan proposed that Yntema or anyone designated by him come to Nebraska for a series of television or radio debates and offered to cover half of the cost of the broadcasts.
